

Life Group Discussion Guide

May 19 – 1 Corinthians 14 – Instructions for Public Worship

Icebreaker:

When you are alone in the car, what volume is the music at?

Discussion Questions:

1. Before Sunday's sermon, what would you have said were some of your main priorities for coming to service? How did this week's text confirm or alter your priorities?
2. If one of the primary purposes of worship is to recognize and embrace the presentness of God in our midst, what do you think gets in the way of us fulfilling that purpose?
3. If another purpose of worship is to edify those around you, what does that practically look like? What are the ways you have been encouraged and in what ways can you begin or continue encouraging the body of believers, specifically in our worship setting?
4. The process of becoming a family of believers that obeys this text and truly edifies one another within our worship won't always come easily or smoothly. There will be a learning curve and awkwardness that needs to be embraced and pushed through. What are the risks of boldly stepping into this type of care of people? What are the risks if we don't?
5. The flip side of this question bears asking: are you vulnerable enough with people to be edified yourself? Do people know how to pray for you, encourage you, and spur you on? Do people know your gifting and that it's okay to ask you to utilize those gifts as needs arise? Or have we robbed people of the opportunity to obey God and serve others by not granting them space to serve you?
6. What songs were playing in church and on the Christian radio when you first came to Christ? Are those songs still especially meaningful to you?

7. How would singing in church change if all of us were committed to singing for the praise of God and the encouragement of the person standing beside us? Do you think the mood would shift? How would that shift in thinking change how you viewed worship?
8. What can we appreciate about a God who allows both the free movement of His Spirit to bring about surprise and revival, etc. and also order and peace in a worship setting? What genius does God display in putting safeguards in place for us to not be too rigid but also not too free?
9. What habits can you begin to put in place now to help prepare your heart, mind and body for worship each Sunday? Do you need to build habits for Saturday night, things you pray about and talk about as a family or for Sunday morning as you get ready? What would help you refocus your priorities on God and His people?
